LITTLE CHUTE, Wis. (WBAY) - A new trail for children has opened at Doyle Park in Little Chute.

The United Way Fox Cities Born Learning Trail has interactive stations for parents and children.

It turns a trip to the park into an educational experience.

"For kids to learn and play at the same time. Statistics show that kids learn as they play. So each sign has a different activity. It's listening, learning, playing, the alphabet, hopscotch, counting. So there's lots to learn on the trail," says Lorraine Haack, Heartland Technology Group, Inc.

The United Way creates similar trails across the country. There are eight of them in the Fox Cities.

Heartland Technology Group sponsored the trail. Volunteers from the company helped with the design.
